Altimetric profile

Min elevation 690 m Max elevation 1087 m

Starting from Place de Rosans, take the road that climbs to the right of the church. You'll soon need to take a trail leading up to the Col de l'Archimbaou (about 6 km of rocky trail). At the top of the pass (1,084 m), amidst the black pine forests, continue along trails that descend gently down the eastern slope of the Serre de l'Aigle. A trail on the left allows you to leave the track for a few meters before resuming a short climb on the track. Let the track go off to your left and take the trail on the right. A fast-rolling section through the underbrush leads to a grassy trail section heading toward the Col de l'Archimbaou. At the pass, turn left onto a beautiful single track through the pine forest. Emerge onto a trail for the final uphill section. At the top of the ridge, take the rocky, downhill trail—it's fast and fun. The landscape is wide open, offering a beautiful view of the entire Rosans valley. On a clear day, you can even spot Mont Ventoux. The trail ends at the road leading back up to the center of Rosans.
