

Tour de la Montagne d'Aujour by bike

Laragne / Méouge - Monétier-Allemont

Autour d'Aujour (Michel Boutin)

The Aujour Mountain Loop, which spans two regions between the Durance and Buëch rivers, offers a 57-kilometer loop through rugged terrain in a still-wild landscape of black marl ravines, crossing the Col d'Espreaux via its northern slope.

On your path...

△ Faye pass (A)

The Col de Faye, located at an elevation of 922 meters, connects the Savournon Valley with the towns of Faye, Lazer, and Ventavon. This route, well known to locals, saves time when traveling from the Gap road to Serrois by avoiding detours of several dozen kilometers. It is also one of the highest points on the “Tour de la montagne d’Aujourd” cycling trail.

△ La Croix pass (B)

The La Croix pass is the only direct road link between Savournon and La Bâtie-Montsaléon. At an elevation of 838 meters, it offers views of the Dévoluy massif, Montagne d'Aujourd, and Montagne de Saint-Genis. At the summit, visitors can see a small statue of the Virgin Mary.
