Starting at the bridge, a wide trail follows the Vançon River upstream (swimming in summer). The trail passes by the abandoned village of Abros (restored chapel), crosses the river via a stone-paved crossing, then, 500 meters further on, crosses a small stream to the right and climbs up the hill (steep ascent). The route continues along a pretty, narrow, technical, and undulating trail that leads back to a path at the foot of the hill. Follow it to the right until you reach the river and cross it at the ford.
